

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The cup holder device is a cylindrical container comprising a clustered arrangement of multiple abutting spring-containing two-piece pins vertically grouped within the cylindrical container for accepting and holding any size cup which depresses the affected pins. Two horizontal apertured walls support the pins and include small drain holes in the peripheral edges.